Certificate of Completion awarded to

Stuart Hurst

For successfully completing the course

Skills for Labour and Environmental Justice

Delivered online
From 20.01.2025 to 09.03.2025

Education Director
Fabio Ghelfi

Date: 09.03.2025
Brussels

The ETUI is co-funded by the European Union

Unique certification code
2212655757SH

etui.
european trade union institute

The training involved about 32 hours of work.

Having completed this course, participants are able to:

- Develop analytical skills to critically address the relationship between work and nature,
- Reinterpret labour law beyond economic growth,
- Raise awareness about the ecological limits to growth and their labour market implications,
- Identify the challenges that climate change implies for workers and the labour market,
- Familiarize yourself with the ILO guidelines on a Just Transition and how to properly implement them,
- Develop the ability to use collective bargaining in promoting sustainable development and a Just Transition ,
- Raise awareness about your labour and environmental rights,
- Examine how workers' environmental rights could be claimed and implemented,
- Develop the ability to design policies and/or initiatives to pursue labour and environmental sustainability in an integrated way,
- Analyze the relationship between workers' participation and environmental democracy,
- Discover how workers might contribute to environmental sustainability,
- Develop the ability to use the role of pension funds in achieving labour and environmental sustainability,
- Familiarize with the meaning of Just Transition from a Global South perspective,
- Explain the effects of energy transition and climate change on certain categories of workers,
- Develop the ability to design and implement policies and/or initiatives to safeguard the labour and environmental conditions of vulnerable workers and communities.

The ETUI is co-funded by the European Union

Unique certification code
2212655757SH

etui.
european trade union institute